Linney occupied seats in the pulpit. Incidentally in his discourse the minister spoke of the recent prize fight in New Orleans, and said that it was a sad commentary on Christian civilization when such things could be tian civilization when such things could be and such interest taken in them by all classes. He also spoke of Sunday base-ball and other sports indulged in on the Sabbath as having a tendency to corrupt the youth of the land and lead them into paths of sin and shame. The discourse was listened to earnestly by the large congregation. Rev. George H. Ray, Jr., filled his father's pulpit Sunday, preaching in the morning on "The life hid with Christ in God." After a logical interpretation of the text the speaker first spoke of the power of the multitude, that is the force wielded by the public in the mat-ter of prevailing sentiment and the great extent to which individual opinion and judgment is ignored by the tempestion to follow the popular current. But, affirmed the speaker, the opinion of the multitude as regards mornity and religion is manifestly dangerous, for if not invariably wrong, yet it is so often and in so many things wrong as to render it absolutely an unsafe stand-ard. Yet thousands of people have, no opin-ions of their own, and their opinions are the sentiments of the general public as they conceive them to be. The sermon was an able and logical review of the entire subject of popular opinion or public sentiment and an earnest pies for the exercise of personal and individual opinion as against following the drift of public sentiment just to be with

TO PROTECT RICHMOND. Dr. Oppenhimer Bas Returned to Rich mond With Much Information.

Dr. W. T. Oppenhimer, president of the Board of Health, returned from New York Sunday morning. He has been to Norfolk and New York in the interest of the health department of this city and learned much useful information about quarantine, disin-fectants and cholers. He first went to Norfectants and cholera. He first went to Norfolk and called upon Dr. W. A. Thom, health officer of that port. Dr. Oppenhimer was taken aboard two chips, and was shown the mode of examination by that officer. All ships coming in are first inspected by the United States officers at the Capes. The ships stopping at Norfolk or Newport News are subjected to a second examination by the officers at those points. Richmond gets only the protection of the inspection made by the officers at the Capes, as there is no inspection at this port.

If there is no sickness aboard the ships are inspected at Lambert's Point, but if there be disease the boats are anchored out at a distance and Dr. Thom has to go to them to make his examination.

From Norfolk Dr. Oppenhimer went to New York. Arriving there he went immediately to the health department and was introduced to Dr. Gyrus Edson, who has charge of the contagious-disease department. He was informed that there was not a case of cholera in New York, nor had there been one. Reported cases have been thoroughly investigated and proven not to be cholera. The most rigid quarantine is being cholers. The most rigid quarantine is being thoroughly enforced and the New York officers are hoping that the dread malady will be kept out of the city. The strictest cleanliness is being observed and enforced throughout the city and all officers are very vigilar.

throughout the city and all officers are very vigilant.

Dr. Oppenhimer was given a letter of introduction to Dr. Jenkins, the health officer for the port of New York. He is located in what is known as the Upper Quarantine district, which is off Fort Wadsworth, and reached via Staten Island.

The president of the Richmond Board of Health did not go aboard any of the quarantined ships, but could see them all, some five or six in number. He was also shown the manner of disinfecting and cleaning the ships. Not going aboard the Normannia, the Doctor did not see Miss Handy, who is a prisoner upon that distressed ship.

When the Doctor left Saturday evening arrangements were being made whereby the passengers in good health should be taken from these ships and held in more comfortable and healtheir quarantine quarters. The action of the New York authorities in not having done this sooner has been several participed.

not having done this sooner has been severely criticised.

The Doctor speaks in high terms of the New York officers and said his trip was a particularly pleasant one. He says he was besieged by a multitude of reporters anxious to get his views on the situation.

Mr. S. Stein, president of the Sir Moses Mentefiore Congregation, has decided to put a tombstone at the grave of Mox Roesdeitcher, who is buried at Oakwood. The deceased, it will be remembered, was murdered near the Feitig house more than two years ago. The expenses of the stone will be borne by the congregation. Will Mark the Grave.
